Discussion Time: 5 Minutes

Think of a friend, colleague, family member who is disinterested in faith: what things do you think they care about most deeply? What kind of wondering questions could you ask them gently try to nudge conversations in a spiritual direction?

Wondering in the Bible?

“People of Athens! I see that in every way you are very religious. For as I walked around and looked carefully at your objects of worship, I even found an altar with this inscription: to an unknown god. So you are ignorant of the very thing you worship—and this is what I am going to proclaim to you.”
(Acts 17:22-23)

Paul in Athens Acts 17

“In my early twenties I didn’t really know what I thought of the Big Story that the universe is telling ... There seemed to be an infinite number of religions, philosophies and conspiracy theories which sought to account for how and why the universe is as it is, and I wasn’t sure which of those Big Stories out there was the real deal. But I did know something about my ‘Little Story’. I knew that I believed in Love. Not just love, but unconditional Love. I wanted to be loved without fear of rejection; loved for who I was and not based on what I did ... I believed in Justice ... I believed in Purpose ... I believed in Freedom ... I believed in Beauty ... I believed that death felt unnatural to observe, no matter how many times I observed it.” – Andy Kind, Hidden in Plain Sight

“I believe in Christianity as I believe that the Sun has risen, not only because I see it but because by it, I see everything else.” – C.S. Lewis

Extra Conversation Resources

The Art of Conversation

1) Be prepared!

- Pray. Think about questions they may ask. Think about what you can talk about with them. Don't wing it!

2) Be multilingual

- How are you able to connect with those you want to reach?
- What are they interested in? What do they enjoy? What do they care about?

The Art of Conversation

3) Set a goal

- A goal to have a specific conversation
- Get accountability

4) Be question ready

- Jesus asked questions...a lot!
- Bridge the gap from 'shooting the breeze' to Jesus.
- Move toward deeper conversations without being threatening.

The Art of Conversation

4) Be question ready

- What was the best / worst part of your week?
- What's been on your mind most recently?
- How would your best friends describe you?
- What were you like as a child? Are you different now? In what ways?
- Whom in your family are you most alike / different from? In what ways?
- Who has had the most significant influence on your life? Why?
- Did you grow up in a religious home?
- Have you ever had experiences in your life that made you think there might be a God?

The Art of Conversation

5) Be response ready

- Questions are a gift and an opportunity to share something about who God is and what He has done.

The Art of Conversation

Example:

Person A question = How was your weekend?

Person B response 1 = Fine, thanks. (conversation stopper)

Person B response 2 = Really good. Saw some friends on Saturday, and went to church on Sunday, which is always a highlight for me. Do you ever go to church?

Person A: No, I'm not religious.

Person B: I never used to be either, but I was invited years ago and found it incredibly meaningful and a wonderful community to be part of. It would be great if you came along sometime to check it out.

The Art of Conversation

6) Be testimony ready

- Sharing the faith is often about finding Christ at the intersection between our own story and those of others.
- Sometimes we find evangelism hard because we don't really actually know our stories very well.
- We all have innumerable testimonies we can tell about how God has worked in our lives

The Art of Conversation

6) Be testimony ready

- Try find a theme I which you can understand your testimony, then reflect on that and how God has worked in that area
- Ie:
 - Guilt, pride, worry, dreams & aspirations, relationships, family, forgiveness...

The Art of Conversation

- 7) Be prayer ready
- 8) Be good stewards of conversation
- 9) Be invitational

The Art of Conversation

Group Exercises:

- 1) Think about the 'wondering' question – list 3 things you think are relevant in your context and how you could use them to open up a spiritual conversation.
- 2) Come up with 5 of your own conversation starter questions.
- 3) Share your testimony in 5 minutes around a particular aspect you resonate with (guilt, pride, worry, dreams & aspirations, relationships, family, forgiveness...)
